Dear parents,

07/04/2020

I hope you are all well and enjoying the sunshine.

I know the majority of you will be easing off the home learning for Easter, which I understand completely - particularly in this weather!

The blog has been updated today and will continue to be updated during the break because I know it is used by some of you as and when necessary. Also, Alice and Hal LOVE doing the Japanese videos! I have uploaded some baseline arithmetic work to do with your children. If they find any of the questions particularly difficult, these will be the ones to focus on. Ask if you are not sure about anything.

From Monday April 20th, unless we are back in school, we will upload daily Maths and English activities as well as weekly science and humanities tasks. I am trying to convince Corrina to do a music video too, which I think would be fantastic.

For literacy/English, we will continue to base our learning around a book. For younger readers, The Enchanted Wood by Enid Blyton; for the Middle Group, The Witches by Roald Dahl and for our oldest/most confident readers The Boy at the Back of the Class by Onjali Rauf.

It would be very helpful if you had a copy of the book in some form or access to the audio book. This will allow your child to access the daily lessons we upload. Please let me know if you have trouble getting access to the books.

Our benevolent overlords at the DfE have collated a list of Online Education Resources which is available here <https://www.gov.uk/government/publications/coronavirus-covid-19-online-education-resources/coronavirus-covid-19-list-of-online-education-resources-for-home-education>

Please continue to send me photographs and videos of the work you manage to complete at home. But, without wanting to sound like a broken record, none of the work we upload is compulsory. Take what you need, ignore what you do not. If you have done any home learning activities which have been particularly successful please do share them with me so we can share and get as many children as possible to benefit from them.

As always, we hope to be able to see you and your children back at school as soon as possible.

Thanks

Joseph Green
